Győr is one of the mostly cultured indusiriál-towns of the Hungarian People' s Republic. The city, which is built at the confluence of the rivers Duna, Rába, and Rábca has 80 000 inhabitants and lies on the halfway of the main-road between Budapest and Wien. The in historical and especially in Baroque-art-wo very rich inner-town is practica embraced like a defence-line by t new works of our to-day' s life. T Past and the Present dissolve in very fine harmony, and Győr opens widely out the ga es of her treusure-house to the visitors coming here.
